	RESOLUTION AND OPERATIVE PARAGRAPHS	STATUS	OBSERVATIONS
4	Resolution No 484 "Coordination mechanism for the development of organic agriculture in the Americas"	Resolution implemented	Resolution 484 was posted on the IICA Web site on August 8, 2008, and forwarded to the Technical Secretariat of the Inter-American Commission on Organic Agriculture in memorandum SC/DG-655, of August 11, 2008.
	To establish the Network of Competent Authorities in Organic Agriculture in the Americas as the Inter-American Commission for Organic Agriculture, with responsibility for coordinating the standards and procedures for promoting and regulating the production of organic food in the hemisphere, as well as trade in those products, and to serve as a technical body for knowledge management in the area of organic agriculture and as a mechanism for consultation, liaison and reciprocal cooperation with the competent governmental bodies that promote and establish standards for the development of organic agriculture in each country.

² Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Paraguay and Uruguay
³ Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Venezuela
⁴ Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and Panama

RESOLUTION AND OPERATIVE PARAGRAPHS	STATUS	OBSERVATIONS
To instruct IICA to prepare, in conjunction with the competent governmental authorities that promote, regulate and establish standards to govern the development of organic agriculture, the bylaws and rules of procedure of the Inter-American Commission for Organic Agriculture, and to submit them to the Executive Committee for consideration at its Twenty-ninth Regular Meeting, to be held in 2009.	Operative paragraph implemented The Executive Committee, at its Twenty- ninth Regular Meeting, held on July 14-16, 2009, adopted Resolution 506, in which it approved the Bylaws for the Inter- American Commission on Organic Agriculture, subject to the approval of the Inter-American Board of Agriculture, and ordered that they put into effect immediately.	The proposed bylaws for the Inter-American Commission on Organic Agriculture will be submitted to the Executive Committee at its Twenty-ninth Regular Meeting for consideration.
To entrust the General Directorate of IICA with providing services as Technical Secretariat to the Inter-American Commission for Organic Agriculture, using the resources allocated for that purpose in the Institute's current Program Budget, and with considering also any financial and technical contributions that Member States, technical and financial cooperation agencies, other institutions and individuals might make to the operation of that Commission and the achievement of its purpose.	Operative paragraph implemented The resources needed to operate the Secretariat were included in the 2009 budget (2009) and in the proposed 2010 Program Budget, which the Executive Committee forwarded to the IABA with a recommendation, in Resolution 504, that it be approved.

To urge the Member States of IICA that do not have competent governmental bodies to promote, regulate and establish standards to govern the development of organic agriculture, to establish them so that they may join the Network of Competent Authorities in Organic Agriculture in the Americas and be part of the Inter-American Commission for Organic Agriculture. Countries that do have such a governmental body are urged to reinforce their institutional structure. 5 Resolution No. 485 "Center for Leadership in Agriculture".	Operative paragraph being implemented Currently, 20 Member States have competent authorities in the area of organic agriculture. In the case of the countries of the Caribbean, efforts are under way to develop a structure that can serve as a competent authority for that region, and to incorporate the competent authorities of Canada and the United States of America. Resolution being implemented
To state that IICA should give high priority to consolidating the Center for Leadership in Agriculture.	The following report summarizes the work of the Center for Leadership, and the consolidation of its operations.	Resolution 485 was posted on the IICA Web site on August 8, 2008, and forwarded to the Center for Leadership in memorandum SC/DG655, of August 11, 2008.
To urge the Ministers of Agriculture and other leaders to participate in the activities of IICA's Center for Leadership in Agriculture so that they may analyze the current state of agriculture in the global context and learn about the Institute's true ability to support the implementation of the agricultural and rural development agendas in Member States.	Thirteen Ministers of Agriculture ⁵ and their high-level teams, as well as two groups of decision makers, participated in an equal number of leadership fora which include strategic conversations between IICA technical personnel and the Minister and his/her team, as well as field trips to visit successful agricultural operations of interest to them.	The closer relations forged as a result of the interaction between IICA personnel and the representatives of the ministries following three days of conversations and field trips lead to the development of synergies, the identification of opportunities for cooperation and the creation of trust, leading to more mutually satisfactory interpersonal relations, which facilitates technical cooperation.

⁵ Antigua and Barbuda, Bahamas, Barbados, Belize, Dominica, Grenada, Haiti, Honduras, Jamaica, Mexico, St. Lucia, Peru and Trinidad and Tobago

	As a result of the leadership fora, training events have been held technical personnel and farmers in areas such as sustainable agriculture, hydroponics, biogas production and construction of biodigestors using animal waste, etc.
To instruct the Director General to reinforce the efforts of the Center for Leadership to shape the future young leaders that agriculture in the region will require.	The leadership capabilities of young people in the agricultural sector who have demonstrated potential have been enhanced thanks to training they have received in current agricultural issues and their trends, and to efforts to underscore the importance of basing work on values, working as a team, instilling trust, knowing how to listen, improving negotiating skills, and other leadership tools.	Several of the young people trained in the fora occupy high-level positions in the agricultural sector of their respective countries. For example, Henry Silva, from Venezuela, is now the manager of a major rural development project in Maracaibo, and Carlos Sanchez, from Panama, is regional director of the Social Investment Fund of Panama.
To urge the Ministers of Agriculture to promote training in their respective countries and to facilitate the personal development of the young leaders who will have future responsibility for agricultural and rural development and to extend to them the necessary facilities and support to enable them to participate in the activities of IICA's Center for Leadership in Agriculture.	Twenty-eight fora have been held for young leaders in the agricultural sector at the hemispheric, regional, national and territorial levels. An Inter-American network of young leaders in agriculture has been created and remains active thanks to a virtual community of practice that offers business and work opportunities and makes it possible to share techniques and tools and other experiences.

	In the year and one half it has been in operation, the Center has provided training for 718 young people in current agricultural issues, and has underscored the importance of basing one's actions on values, working as a team, creating trust, knowing how to listen, improving negotiating skills and other leadership tools. Twelve young leaders are currently participating in internships in countries other than their own for periods of three to twelve months, supporting agricultural projects with assistance from the IICA Office in the corresponding country.
To instruct the Director General: (i) to report to future regular meetings of the Executive Committee on the activities of the Center for Leadership in Agriculture; and (ii) to report on implementation of the provisions of this resolution.	have received reports on the results achieved by the Center for Leadership. In addition, the Center produces a magazine

Resolution Implemented	Resolution 496 was posted on the IICA Web site on August 8, 2008, and shared with the Director General of CATIE in communication SC/DG-644, dated August 13, 2008.

RESOLUTION AND OPERATIVE PARAGRAPHS	STATUS	OBSERVATIONS
To instruct the Director General of IICA and the Director General of CATIE to prepare and submit to the Executive Committee, at its next regular meeting, a joint program of action for 2009 and 2010. That program should: a) attach priority to the execution of joint activities in the following areas: (i) territorial rural development, natural resource management, the environment, climate change, and (ii) technological innovation, value chains and competitiveness; b) define a strategy and more appropriate management, administrative and operating mechanisms to ensure the necessary continuity and enhance the results of joint action.	At the end of 2008, a task force was set up to monitor relations between IICA and CATIE, and placed under the joint coordination of the Deputy Director Generals of both institutions. The task force has met every two months since then (it held its third meeting for this year in June), providing an opportunity to study in detail and continue initiatives under way, and to reach agreement on institutional priorities for the 2009-2010 biennium. The work plan drawn up by IICA and CATIE for complying with Executive Committee Resolution 496 was approved in Resolution 516 of the Twenty-ninth Regular Meeting of the Executive Committee. This plan integrates current initiatives and defines priority areas for cooperation between the two institutions, as called for in the aforementioned Executive Committee resolution, to wit: territorial rural development, natural resource management, environment and climate change; innovation, technology, value chains and competitiveness; management of information and knowledge.

	In order to facilitate the implementation of initiatives in these areas, the work plan calls for the creation of a mechanism for ongoing coordination, encourages the development of strategic alliances with other universities and distance education programs, and promotes a comprehensive approach to food security. and the Director General of CATIE to build a common knowledge management platform so as to facilitate access for all professionals, institutions and individuals working for agricultural and rural development in the Americas, as well as students pursuing professional and technical degrees related to agriculture, to the information and knowledge of both institutions.	As regards the management of technical information, CATIE and IICA continue to administer Orton Memorial Library jointly and to operate the Agricultural Information and Documentation Service of the Americas (SIDALC). This information service, which today serves 23 countries and 158 institutions, has 265 data bases with 2.2 million entries and more than 100,000 full-text documents. The ARS USDA NAL project, which made it possible to preserve the inter-American collection and improve the infrastructure of the library, concluded. Two other projects prepared jointly by IICA and CATIE aimed at enhancing the services provided by the library were submitted to donors such as USAID-ASHA and the Elsevier Foundation for consideration.

	As a result of our relationship with Google, some 14,000 documents in the library have been digitized.
	Lastly, the Leadership in the Management of Agricultural Information Program, carried out in the Caribbean in conjunction with the CTA, provided training for 40 professionals from research institutes, universities and NGOs in the region.

Annex 1 Actions taken by IICA in response to the food security situation

As soon as it became apparent that instability in the supply and volatility in the prices of the major food crops for human consumption would affect the countries of the Americas, the Institute began to monitor closely the food security situation throughout the hemisphere. The Institute stated its position on the situation and underscored the need to attach top priority to agriculture and food security on the development agendas of the countries. It also stated its willingness to collaborate with the Member States in facing the situation as effectively as possible, and insisted on the need to formulate and implement strategies and policies aimed at coming up with sustainable medium- and long-term solutions to the food security problems of the countries.

Strategic lines of action in food security for IICA

Based on the 2006-2010 MTP and Resolution No. 482 of the Executive Committee, and following a thorough internal discussion of the areas of action for IICA, and limitations for same, during the 2008 Representatives' Meeting, three strategic lines of action were defined on which to focus the Institute's actions at the hemispheric, regional and national levels. The lines and their general objectives are:

- a. Institutional innovation for a new paradigm of technological change for food production and diversification. Objective: To improve the institutional framework related to research, "extension" and development of agricultural technology, with a view to increasing the availability and variety of foods produced by small- and medium-scale farmers.
- b. Institutional framework and services to better able small- and medium-scale farmers and family agriculture to become involved in the market. Objective: To contribute to increasing the incomes of small- and medium-scale farmers and those in the family agriculture sector, in order to ensure access to food and contribute to increasing the food supply.
- c. Analysis, monitoring and dissemination of policies and information on the state of and outlook for food security. Objective: To monitor and report on the state of and outlook for food security in IICA's member countries and facilitate hemispheric dialogue on this topic.

For each strategic line of action, a coordinator was named and tasked with drawing up an institutional proposal and ensuring that regional and national initiatives were consistent with Institute guidelines for each strategic line of action. To date, comprehensive proposals have been presented that include strategies, expected results, specific products, activities, budgets and strategic partners to be involved.

The Institute has placed emphasis on the consolidation of the first two strategic lines of action, with an eye to making sure that the actions intended to improve the competitiveness and the incomes of small- and medium-scale farmers and those in the family agriculture sector are both comprehensive and cross-cutting, by helping to develop and strengthen institutional frameworks that will facilitate their access to appropriate technologies and to services needed for agricultural production.

The regional programming meetings (first semester 2009) provided an opportunity to present the strategic lines of action, provide the Representatives and regional and local specialists with guidance on the preparation of proposals and food security projects, and to adjust the national and regional agendas to address emerging needs in this area. As a result, a number of projects and initiatives now exist for all three lines, many of which are being implemented or will be implemented in the coming months.

Monitoring and disseminating information on the situation

One of the needs identified by the countries is that of having access to accurate and timely information on the food security situation and to policy options for addressing it. In response, Food Security was included as a "hot technical topic" on IICA's Web page. Included in this section is the Director General's position on the issue, as well as the definition of food security from the Institute's perspective. It also presents research and analyses conducted by the Institute, the actions undertaken by the Institute and its partners to address this issue at the hemispheric and regional levels, news and international events, links to the sites of other hemispheric and global organizations, and research and documents of other organizations and people that offer different perspectives on food security.

Progress has been made in developing an "Observatory of policies on and the state of food security" which will link the efforts of FAO and IICA with those of the CAS and the CAC. Units at Headquarters and in the Offices periodically update information on food security on their Web pages, and the September 2008 edition of the COMUNIICA magazine devoted three articles to this issue.

Technical cooperation in the countries and regions

In response to requests from the countries, support has been provided for actions they have undertaken to address food security emergencies and to develop sustainable medium-and long-term strategies and policies that will make it possible to achieve or guarantee an adequate level of food security. In addition, field research has been conducted in five countries (two regions per country) to estimate the true impact of the volatility of prices on the incomes of farmers.

At the regional level, the IICA Offices in the Andean countries, the Directorate of Operations and Integration for the Andean Region and the respective regional specialists have provided collaboration to the MoAs and the research and technology transfer institutions of the region to encourage the cultivation of ancestral crops with great potential for contributing to food security. The objective is to diversify the foods offered by vulnerable populations, applying technology to native crops. IICA supports proposals to take advantage of the government food distribution programs in the region to improve the incomes of small- and medium-scale farmers.

In the Southern region, IICA supports the operation of a platform of institutional innovations for technological innovation (NARIs, PROCISUR-IICA); the dialogue on "rural extension" from the perspective of knowledge management and the incorporation of technologies into family agriculture; and the "professionalization" of farmers through the development of the capabilities needed to incorporate technology into different production chains. IICA aims to improve the income of family agriculture by having them supply of local markets.

In the Caribbean Region, efforts are under way to compile and disseminate information and knowledge related to agricultural technologies and good practices that can be adopted and applied by small- and medium-scale farmers to increase productivity and improve food security, with emphasis on greenhouse systems. Another area of action is the development and consolidation of production-trade links between farmers and the tourism sector. Of particular note is the direct support provided to Haiti in coordination with other countries and cooperating organizations (Prohuerta).

In the Central Region, a regional program dealing with institutional innovation and knowledge management in support of small- and medium-scale agriculture, which comprises two projects, will be launched: one on the development of innovations, capabilities and competences in technical assistance and extension, and the other on determining the availability of technology and the level of technology transfer in priority food production chains. Currently, we are working with the WFP in the implementation of a regional project aimed at improving the incomes of staple grain producers.

In the Northern Region, IICA is promoting the sharing of information on technology with the other countries of the Americas, via "e-extension." It is also encouraging large companies to play a more active social role, through the development of programs in which small- and medium-scale farmers and producers supply food.

Search for external resources

IICA's limited resources are insufficient to have a true impact on the food security situation. Therefore, in addition to allocating internal resources to fund activities in the area of food security, special emphasis has been placed on preparing project proposals and profiles aimed at seeking resources for the implementation of comprehensive and sustainable projects. This search for resources has been undertaken by the Directorate of External Financing and Investment Projects, and by the Offices and our hemispheric and regional specialists.

Coordination with other organizations and agencies

Aware that the demands of the countries far exceed its capabilities, of the need to avoid a duplication of efforts and of the multiplier effect of joint actions with other organizations, IICA has discussed and reached agreement with strategic partners and has coordinated with them policies, projects and joint activities at the hemispheric, regional and national levels. These partners include WFP, FAO, ECLAC, World Bank, OAS, USDA, CAS, CAC, ODEPA, FORAGRO, PROCIs, SICTA, Cornell University, University of Florida, other universities in LAC, INTA-Argentina, NARIs, GFAR, INFOTEC partners and a number of national and local organizations.
